

Bio:

Sera is a professional stunt driver living in Los Angeles. Her life is often divided between work on car commercials (as the KIA Hamster) or stunt doubling actresses (such as Grace Park on Hawaii Five-0). Sera's past jobs (as a pizza delivery driver and a hotel car valet) provided the momentum that drove her to a career involving: 1. Cars, and; 2. Unnaturally aggressive (yet precise) driving.

Before being enchanted by driving, she studied Commercial Photography. Feeling compelled to document the world and see things less-known, Sera has since backpacked Japan, Thailand, Australia, and Western Europe. Sera's (latest) hobbies are as random as playing the drums, shooting pool, painting, and following F1 racing.

Originally from Washington State, Sera was "discovered" while working as a valet in a prestigious Seattle hotel. A commercial crew from Los Angeles were guests, and the Director suggested she move to Los Angeles and pursue a career behind the wheel (after witnessing Sera back out of the driveway at 30+ mph, and consistently avoid moving objects). Sera took that advice, tossed five bags of clothes in a car, and drove to the City of Angels. There she crashed on couches and lived out of her car, hoping that one day her diet would consist of more than Top Ramen noodles. With the help of some amazing individuals, she found a family of talented, passionate, and like-minded drivers to roll with. Sera is happiest when driving rally cars, drift cars, sprint cars on a dirt oval, Blizzak tire-equipped cars on ice, or any other type of car on a road course. Her favorite cars driven (so far) include the Ford GT, Audi R-8, and the Cadillac CTS-V.
